

SIMpull® Product Guarantee

Southwire Company guarantees that the SIMpull THHN® cable (also rated for THWN-2) or the SIMpull XHHW™ cable (with copper conductor) supplied to the job named below can be installed without requiring the application of lubricant on the conductors to facilitate the pulling of conductors through PVC or metal conduit. This guarantee is null and void unless Contractor follow the instructions found in Southwire's "Installation & Application Guide for 600 volt Conductors" when installing the product (Installation & Application Guide can be found at www.southwire.com/guarantee). If during installation, the performance of SIMpull THHN cable or SIMpull XHHW cable is not equivalent to the performance of standard THHN or XHHW cable installed with conventional lubricant at the time of installation, Southwire will replace the nonperforming cable and Southwire will reimburse Contractor for the direct costs incurred replacing conductors damaged during installation. Under no circumstances, will Southwire be responsible for indirect costs, consequential damages, or incidental damages including loss of profit or revenue.

Southwire reserves the right to have one of its representatives inspect the SIMpull cable prior to its removal.

This guarantee is separate and distinct from the product warranty set forth in Southwire's terms and conditions of sale located at www.southwire.com.

Claims made against this guarantee must be made in writing to Southwire within one week of the installation date. This guarantee expires regardless of the installation date upon the expiration of the product's warranty period.
